Rich Schell has officially announced that Marguerite Callaway of the international management consultancy The Callaway Group LLC will be guest lecturing in his class on Food Law & Regulation on July 8, 2009 at the Illinois Institute of Technology/National Center for Food Safety and Technology in Summit Argo. Ms. Callaway will speak on emerging issues in developing countries related to health, food and international investing in developing countries.

“We are extremely fortunate to have someone with direct on the ground experience in China, South Africa, Liberia and Ethiopia speak on such a timely topic,” said Rich Schell, Of Counsel at Wagner & Schell and Adjunct Instructor in food law and regulation. “When NPR’s Jerome McDonnell and The Economist both decide to cover international investing in farmland, it is definitely something to talk about in a food law class,” observed Schell.

Marguerite Moore Callaway is founder and president of the Callaway Group LLC, which has ongoing projects in the USA, Europe, Africa, and China. The company’s focus is in healthcare leadership, system development and new business start-ups.

Ms. Callaway teaches throughout the USA and UK, as well as in several African countries. Most recently she presented a series of formal lectures on effective 21st century leadership to senior clinical leaders in China. Since 2005, Ms. Callaway has been a faculty member (Lecturer) in both the Yale University’s School of Epidemiology and Public Health and School of Nursing. She is also a faculty member of the Foundation for Professional Development in South Africa (2005-present), where she teaches Leadership/Strategy/Change
